Rogers Foundation selects new executive

Matthias Schueth brings substantial experience, international perspective

Oconomowoc, Wis. – The Rogers Memorial Hospital Foundation has hired Matthias Schueth to serve as the organization's executive vice president.

Schueth spent over 13 years as the press spokesman and VP of communications and development at Caritas Germany, a catastrophe relief organization for third world countries. He also worked as the director of development and annual programs at Children's Hospital of Wisconsin, and at 3M Germany as a Marketing Service Engineer.

"We are confident that his strong background, international perspective and philanthropic heart will pave the way for new opportunities and growth for our mission," said outgoing foundation executive Marion Heinz.

The Rogers Memorial Hospital Foundation raises philanthropic support to ensure the future of the hospital as it provides effective treatment for those suffering from mental illness.

The Rogers Memorial Hospital Foundation cultivates awareness of the hospital's mission and builds long-term relationships for philanthropic support. One hundred percent of all donations directly support the hospital's patients and Rogers Memorial treatment programs, providing long-term financial stability for the hospital.
